

Indiana State Bar Association Presents
Pre-Summit on Racial Disparities in the Juvenile Justice System:
A Law Enforcement Roundtable
Wednesday, August 26, 2009

FEATURED SPEAKERS

Thomas Cleary, Portland, Ore., is the senior deputy district attorney for the juvenile unit in the Multnomah County District Attorney's Office. He has extensive prosecution experience and has presented at numerous conferences on topics ranging from community policing and prosecution to juvenile law and case processing. Cleary has spearheaded efforts to implement juvenile detention reform strategies in Multnomah County, widely regarded as a national model for more than 100 Juvenile Detention Alternative Initiative (JDAI) reform sites operating nationwide.

Chief Paul MacMillan: Boston, Mass., is the police chief at the Massachusetts Bay Transit Authority (MBTA) Police Department. In 2004, the MBTA partnered with Suffolk University Juvenile Justice Center to train the department to work more effectively with youth, devising the StopWatch Program, a community policing approach that increases positive youth interactions. The MBTA's StopWatch Program is a recipient of the 2005 IACP/Motorola Webber Seavey Award for Quality in Law Enforcement and the American Public Transportation Association Award for Innovation.

Hon. Steven C. Teske: Clayton County, Ga., is the judge of the Juvenile Court of Clayton County. In 2000, Judge Teske began collaboratively-based detention reform and later initiated a community-driven process to reduce school-based referrals and arrests, eventually earning best practice recognition nationally. He is the immediate past president of the Georgia Council of Juvenile Court Judges. Additionally, Judge Teske was appointed by the governor to the Judicial Advisory Council of the Department of Justice and the Federal Advisory Committee on Juvenile Justice.

Lisa Thureau: Cambridge, Mass., is an attorney and law enforcement training consultant for Strategies for Youth, a consulting firm established by Thureau. She previously served as the managing director and policy specialist at Suffolk University Juvenile Justice Center. In 2004, Thureau collaborated with the Massachusetts Bay Transit Authority (MBTA) Police Department to develop the StopWatch Program, a community policing approach that increases positive youth interactions.

Chief Noble Wray: Madison, Wis., is the police chief at the Madison Police Department, where he has been a law enforcement officer for over 20 years. Chief Wray served as co-chair of a 2007-08 governor appointed Commission on Reducing Racial Disparities in the Wisconsin Criminal Justice System. He also currently serves as chair of an oversight commission charged with monitoring and implementing the recommendations that resulted from the Commission on Reducing Racial Disparities. He is a nationally recognized consultant in the areas of problem solving and community policing.